Our daily brew stirs retail sales.

Each day before presstime, award winning professionals mix several ingredients that add lots of local flavor to the North Shore's leading newspaper. It all boils up to experience and intuition that our readers appreciate. Advertisers value it, because interested readers stir retail sales. Our brew is the most popular in the marketplace. The Salem Evening News circulates to more households in Salem, Danvers, Peabody, Marblehead, and Beverly than both Boston dailies. A.M. and P.M. by bigger circulation numbers than you might expect. We're the big News in surrounding communities, too. If you would like to start sales stirring on the North Shore, contact our advertising department at 617-744-0600. They can perform some real sales magic. The Salem Evening News, we've got a strong household readership that can get your cauldron boiling.

KANSAS CITY: GREAT FOR GUCCI, STUPENDOUS FOR SAK'S 5th AVENUE

Many fine stores are operating in Kansas City. So are 242 of Fortune's 500 firms.

K.C.'s mid-continental location is important, and then there are the Kansas Citians themselves: their Effective Buying Income of $20,901 is almost $3,000 above the national average. More than a third maintain yearly incomes in excess of $25,000.

Reaching 551,000 daily and 711,000 Sunday readers, the Kansas City Times and Star cover the nation's 29th largest metro area like no other medium can. Every day, 75% of K.C. adults with household incomes of $35,000 and above read The Times/Star. On Sunday that figure rises to 83%.

Waste not. Want not.

A graphic comparison of paid circulation vs. free distribution.
And how the Post and Globe can keep you from wasting your breadth in St. Louis.

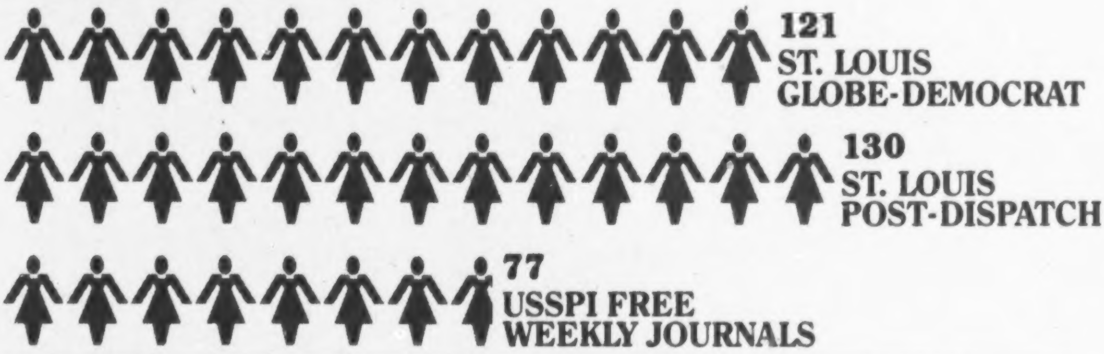
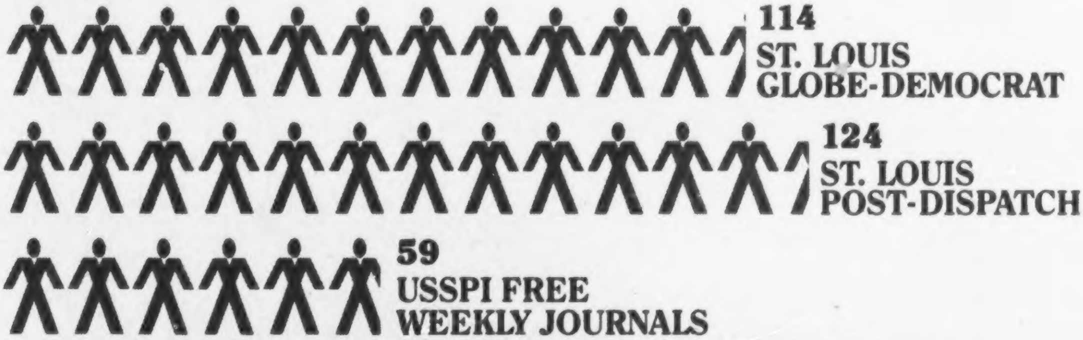
WOMEN Readers per 100 copies



MEN Readers per 100 copies



What common sense always told you, the facts now prove: when people pay for a paper, they read it; when they get it free, you take your chances. So unless you're looking for coverage at any cost, spend your dollars in St. Louis where they'll be seen, not thrown away.

The basic Post and Globe numbers: 989,000 net unduplicated adult readers.
The cost-per-thousand saving versus the give-away journals: 12%.

NEW YORK

1 - LOCATION: (Bronx, Kings, New York, Queens and Richmond counties). On E&P Map F-6. Eastern seaboard; largest city in U.S.A. in mfg. imports, exports and retail sales; important financial, publishing and garment center. More than 60% of the U.S. garment industry is within the New York Metropolitan area. United Nations Headquarters; about 10 million visitors annually.

The Port of New York and New Jersey, the nation's primary gateway for international commerce, handled more than 58.6 billion in trade goods in 1980, nearly half again the value of the second place port. It covers 1,500 square miles in the two States, generally within a 25-mile radius of the Statue of Liberty.

2 - TRANSPORTATION: Railroads : Conrail, with connecting service throughout the United States, and six terminal railroads furnish service to industrial and marine facilities.
Motor Freight : 10,000 registered common carrier trucks serve the Port District each business day. Over 420 carriers provide local and long haul service.
Steamship Service : Ships of 150 steamship lines and agencies carry cargoes and passengers from and to all the leading ports of the world. The New York City Passenger Ship Terminal on the Hudson River between 48th and 52nd Streets served 365,664 passengers on over 300 ships in 1980, mostly on cruises.

Bus Service : During 1980, the Port Authority Bus Terminal handled about 2 million buses and 57 million passengers. On a typical weekday in 1980, approximately 6,200 buses, carrying almost 172,000 passengers, used the Bus Terminal.

The Terminal provides centrally located facilities for direct and connective bus travel between New York and virtually any point in the continental United States, Canada and Mexico. The Bus Terminal is located one block from Times Square at 41st Street and Eighth Avenue. A $180 million expansion and modernization project is approaching its final stages of completion. The George Washington Bridge Bus Station in Upper Manhattan served 8 million passengers in 1980. It is located on the New York approaches to the great bridge between 178th and 179th Streets.

A second expansion project is now under way to further increase the peak-hour capacity of the Terminal. This program will extend the Terminal north to 42nd Street between the former McGraw-Hill Building and Eighth Avenue and will provide 52 additional bus loading positions with the potential for 26 more positions in the future. The Lower Bus Level extension will be served by a new vehicular underpass which provides direct access between it and the Lincoln Tunnel, thus reducing the amount of bus traffic on 40th and 41st Streets. New passenger concourses with consumer service areas will give access to these loading positions. Portions of the extension became operational in late 1979, and it is expected that work in all new areas will be complete by the end of 1981.

As a part of this project, the present Terminal is being modernized to bring all facilities up to current standards and to tie it into the new construction harmoniously. Among the many features of the modernization are the enclosing with glass partitions and air conditioning of 24 "island" platforms which provide a total of 105 bus loading positions. A new ticket plaza/open lounge waiting area has been developed, storefronts are being modernized and all public concourses will be upgraded and air conditioned. Some other features include the replacement of escalators, the central air conditioning plant and the public address, fire and sprinkler alarm systems as well as the rehabilitation of elevators and public toilet facilities.

Through 1980, the Port Authority had invested $176,700,000 in the Bus Terminal and the new extension. Upon completion of all extension work in 1982, the investment will be increased to $200,000,000.

Scheduled Airlines and Certified Cargo Carriers

Airports : The regional airport system serving the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area, operated by the Port Authority, comprises John F. Kennedy International and LaGuardia Airports in Queens and Newark International and Teterboro Airports in northern New Jersey. Together, they handle over 2,000 commercial plane movements a day. Kennedy handles most international flights and long haul domestic movements. The Air Cargo Center, the largest in the world, handles about a million tons a year between major cities in the United States and worldwide markets. LaGuardia handles short and medium range flights. Newark International, recently rebuilt by the Port Authority, handles both domestic and international flights, and has a cargo center second in size only to Kennedy Airport. Teterboro, operated by Pan American World Airways under agreement with the Authority, handles general aviation traffic only.

Is Your Co-op Dollar Working As Hard As You Are?

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
CO-OP

You're a multi-million dollar company and you've set aside quite a bit of money for an aggressive co-op program but nothing is happening. Why?

One reason may be that the communication link between your distributor and the media representative needs improvement.

The sales staff of the Tulsa World and The Tulsa Tribune are trained to provide professional assistance in producing co-op advertising programs to benefit both the retailer and the manufacturer.

To find out how easy you can effectively put your co-op dollars to work in reaching 70% of the 445,000 adults in the Tulsa SMSA*, call Lonie McKee, manager, Co-op Advertising, (918) 581-8520. Make your newspaper co-op dollar work for you in the terrific Tulsa market.
